DESCRIPTION AND LOCATION

Lowenva is situated in an elevated position on Church Road, just 500m from Hugh Town, the tiny “capital” of St Mary’s with its shops, schools, banks, Post Office, harbour and many other amenities.

Formerly the holiday home of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, and until recently the island home of his late widow, Lady Wilson, Lowenva was built for the family in 1959. It is of cavity block construction, having Reformite stone exterior, and a pitched shingle roof.

Although the house does not enjoy sea views, the large lawned garden does. However, a modest extension out towards Church Road, would afford sea views, subject to the necessary consents.

The property generally enjoys excellent natural light levels, catching the sun all day. It is now in need of modernisation throughout, with potential for conversion of the roofspace to extend the accommodation – a perfect blank canvas to create a bespoke home.

Viewing recommended.
